GENERAL INTRODUCTION.

THE pre-eminence amongst the Ecclesiastical Records of the Kingdom must on every ground be conceded to the VALOR ECCLESIASTICUS of King Henry VIII. It is no less than an entire Survey and Estimate of the whole Ecclesiastical Property of England and Wales, in the state in which it stood on the very eve of the Reformation,—the accumulation of the many centuries which had preceded since first the British Church was endowed. The importance, politically and historically, of such a document was early perceived and acknowledged by His Majesty's Commissioners on the Public Records of the Realm. At an early period of their labours they directed that it should be transcribed and printed, committing the execution of the work to their late Secretary, Mr. Caley. The work has been long in progress. The First Volume appeared in 1810; the Second in 1814; and this was followed by three other Volumes, which were published respectively in 1817, 1821, and 1825.

All of this Record which could then be found in the Office of the First Fruits, to which the custody of it is committed, was then laid before the Public; and nothing more seemed to be wanting to complete the design which was laid down in the First Volume, except a suitable Introduction which should show the History, Nature, Use, and State of the Record, and a General Map of England and Wales, presenting at one view the great Ecclesiastical Divisions of the country.

It happened, however, that some detached pieces of evidence, which, if not actual portions of the Valor, are contemporary with it, and contain information of the same description, were discovered about that time at the Augmentation Office and the Chapter House. A very distinguished Member of the former Commissions, now deceased, also suggested that a General Index would give additional value and efficiency to the publication. So that it was resolved that a Sixth Volume should be prepared, to consist of the newly-discovered Documents and a General Index, and that with it should appear the Map and the Introduction, which were promised in the First Volume.

The Commissioners named in the Royal Commission of March 12, 1831, found the Sixth Volume in an unfinished state. The whole of the documentary matter was printed, as was also a considerable part of the Index; but no preparation had been made for the Map or for the General Introduction.

It is to be regretted that these, and particularly the latter, had not been executed by the Editor of this Publication, who possessed advantages for such a work which the Writer of the present Introduction cannot be expected to possess. It is fortunate, however, that the history of the Valor is not one of those obscure subjects which require for their perfect elucidation to have light thrown upon them drawn from many and distant quarters; nor does the arrangement or any part of the contents of the Record present any insurmountable or considerable difficulties.

All that seems to belong to a suitable Introduction to this Record may be distributed under the following Heads:—

I. The Purpose for which the Valor was formed.
II. The Manner of Proceeding in making it.
III. What Classes of Dignities, Benefices, and Ecclesiastical Foundations were within its scope.
IV. The Mode in which the Property is set forth.
V. The Uses now to be made of the Valor.
VI. Its State, Conservation, and Publication.

And in this order it is now proposed to proceed.

GENERAL INTRODUCTION.

I.—The Purpose for which the Valor was formed.

This purpose is to be sought for in the measures incident to the Reformation of Religion under King Henry VIII.

During a long series of ages the usurpations of the Church of Rome on the ancient freedom and property of the English Church had been advancing, till they had reached a height which may justly be called enormous. Some small contribution might seem to be not unreasonably demanded from every part of Christendom by that Power, which by common consent, or at least common submission, was supposed to be ever consulting for the common benefit of Christianity, and which did actually administer the affairs of the great Christian confederacy. But the contributions demanded were grown excessive; they were claimed on every pretence; and there was also much of delay and vexation in consequence of the demands.

Resistance to these encroachments had been made from time to time by the Sovereigns and the Prelates and Nobles. The claim to Annates, which, as we shall see, was intimately connected with the matter contained in the Valor, had been declared by an Act of Henry IV.'s Parliament to be "a horrible mischief and damnable custom;" —and other portions of the claims had been often made a subject of negotiation and dispute.

At length, however, the cord was completely cut which bound the English Church to that of Rome. Under King Henry VIII. the demands were questioned in a spirit of the most unlimited freedom; the unsoundness of the title and the political inexpediency were made apparent; and the Church of Rome was deprived, not only of Annates, but of the whole of that revenue which she had been accustomed to derive from England.

While the negotiations were proceeding respecting the divorce, the Parliament, which began to sit at Westminster on the 15th January, in the Twenty-third year of Henry VIII. (A.D. 1532), passed an Act, entitled "An Acte concernynge restraynt of payment of Annates to the See of Rome." The use of the term Annates in this Act is evident. It described the First Fruits of the Bishopricks and Archbishopricks, with all sums paid for Palls, Bulls, and the like, on the consecration of every new Prelate. Nothing is said in the Act of any Tenths paid to the Pope; or of any, either First Fruits or Tenths, from any person holding Dignity or Benefice below the dignity of Bishop. This seems to have been in some measure overlooked by previous writers on this subject, who seem to have considered the Annates, of which by this Act the Pope was deprived, as being that which by a subsequent Act was given to the King. The sums received under the denomination of Annates from the Second year of King Henry VII., a period of forty-five years, are said in the Act to have been not less than £160,000. The further payment of Annates is restrained under the severe penalty of the forfeiture of all his temporalities by any Bishop or Archbishop who should in this offend. A new mode is pointed out for the consecration of Prelates: and it is declared, that in case the Pope should resort to an Interdict, Divine Service should notwithstanding proceed as it had been accustomed.

Yet the Act did not quite close the door to an amicable arrangement on the subject of this claim. The King was empowered to negotiate for the moderation of the demand, and to give or withhold his consent to the Act itself till the meeting of the next Parliament. One object plainly was to strengthen the King's hands in his negotiations concerning the divorce, by empowering him, without again going to Parliament, to cut off at his own pleasure this great source of the Papal Revenue.

It was not till the 25th of July 1533 that the King ratified the Act. Whether there was supposed to have been any irregularity in this, or any departure from the principles of the English Constitution, another Act upon the subject was thought necessary; and accordingly, when Parliament again met, which it did on the 15th January 1534, a second Act was passed, in which the main provisions of the former Act are ratified, and in which the King's ratification of it by his Letters Patent is recognized and confirmed. This Act forms the twentieth chapter of the Acts of the Twenty-fifth of Henry VIII.; and the very next Act goes farther in the same course, declaring it to be unlawful to make any payments on any pretence to the See of Rome, and severing the connection which had existed between the two states.

The people and clergy of England were by these Acts relieved from a heavy burthen. But it was not in the contemplation of the Court to give to the Church what it had wrested from the Pope, without requiring something in return. The Court could not demand from the Church the Annates, the Peter Pence, the Indulgence Fees, and other moneys under the old names: some other form it was necessary to adopt. What might be the principle of the commutation it may not now be easy to discover, but the demand at last assumed this form,—that the Church should render to the King the First Fruits of all Benefices and Dignities, and the Tenth of their Annual Revenues.

This was settled by an Act passed in the Parliament which began to sit on the 3d November, in the Twenty-sixth of Henry VIII. (A.D. 1534.) The title is "An Acte concerninge the paiment of Firste Fruites of all dignities, benefices, and promocyons spirituall, and also concerninge one annuell pencyon of the tenthe parte of all the possessions of the Churche, spirituall and temporall, graunted to the Kinges Highnes and his heires." It forms the third chapter of the Acts of that Parliament, the first having been the Act which declares the King the Supreme Head of the Church of England.

It was to carry into effect the provisions of this Act that the Valor was formed.

The First Fruits are declared to be the clear revenue and profits for one entire year; and the Tenths, the tenth part of such clear annual revenue. They were to be taken of all "Archbishopricks, Bishopricks, Abbeys, Monasteries, Priories, Colleges, Hospitals, Archdeaconries, Deaneries, Provostships, Prebends, Parsonages, Vicarages, Chantries, Free Chapels, and every other dignity, benefice, office, or promotion spiritual within the realm or elsewhere within any of the King's dominions, of what name, nature, or quality soever they be, or to whose foundation, patronage, or gift soever they belong."

An Act like this, which gave the King a permanent revenue from a new source, having no mean ratio to the whole aggregate revenue of the Crown, required some preparation to carry it into effect; and in particular it became necessary to ascertain what and how many ecclesiastical foundations there were which stood affected by the provisions of the Act, and what was the amount of the annual revenue from each to which the King was entitled.

There was indeed already existing of record in the King's Exchequer a Valor of the Ecclesiastical Property of England. This had been made in the time of King Edward I. under the sanction of Pope Nicholas IV. It had been used as the standard by which all assessments on the Clergy were regulated, and all papal or regal demands. Even now it is of use in the interpretation of the Statutes of some Colleges founded before the Reformation. But for so great a purpose as the determining a fixed perpetual annual payment, beside the casual payment on every avoidance, a new Survey and Valuation seemed expedient, if not absolutely necessary: for (1.) a great change had taken place in the value, as estimated in money, of most of the dignities and benefices, probably of all: (2.) a great change had taken place in their relative values: and (3.) there had arisen in the interval between the date of Pope Nicholas' Valor and the time of this Act innumerable foundations of the species denominated Chantries, from which a large revenue was about to be derived. The piety of the English nation had flowed very much in that direction in the interval between the reigns of Edward and Henry. The taste for founding the more splendid monastic institutions had declined; but Chantries had arisen in almost every Church, where, in solemn commemorations of the departed, there was a beautiful union of piety to God, with some of the dearest charities of life.

Hence a new Survey was necessary; a Survey which should extend to all foundations spiritual whatsoever; a Survey which should supersede the old Survey as matter of record, and be from henceforth the standard to which reference was to be made in all points touching the revenue of the Church, and the contributions it should make to the State; and to which the King or the Clergy might at any time have recourse for the determination of any question that might arise touching the just extent of the demand and render of First Fruits and Tenths. And accordingly in the same Act in which this share of the profits of promotions spiritual is given to the King, his heirs and successors, it is enacted that such a Survey shall be taken by Commissioners sent in the King's name into every part of the Kingdom of England and Wales, whose duty it should be to inquire out all such promotions, and to return an exact account of all the temporalities and spiritualities with which they were endowed.

The VALOR ECCLESIASTICUS of King Henry VIII. is the Return into the Exchequer which these Commissioners made.

II.—The Manner of Proceeding in making the Survey.

"It is ordeyned and enacted by auctoryte aforesaide, that the Chauncelour of Englande for the tyme beynge, shall have power and auctoryte to dyrecte ynto everie Dyoces yn thys Realme and yn Wales severall Commyssions yn the Kynge's name,under his greate seale, as well to the Archbusschoppe or Busshoppe of everie such Dyoces as to such other parsone or parsones as the Kynge's Highnes shall name and appoynte, comaundynge and auctorisinge the said Commyssioners so to be named in everie suche Commyssion, or III of them at the leaste, to examyn, serche, and enquyre, by all the wayes and meanes that they can by their dyscrecions, of and for the true and just, hole and entyere yerely values of all the manors, londes, tenements, hereditaments, rents, tythes, offerings, emoluments, and all other profittes aswell spirituall as temporall apperteyninge or belonginge to any Archebusshopricke, &c. within the lymyttes of their Commyssion."

"And it is ordeyned and enacted by auctoryte aforesaide, that the saide Commyssioners shall have full power and auctoryte to do, accomplyssche, and execute the effects and contents of theyr said Commyssions in every behalf; and that every the said Commyssioners before they shall execute their sayd Commyssion shall receyve and take a corporall othe before the Lord Chauncelour, or before suche other as shalbe appoynted by the said Chauncellour by the Kynge's writ of Dedimus Potestatem, that they shall diligently and truly, without favour, affeccion, fraude, covyn, mede, drede, or corrupcion, do, fulfill, and execute the hole effectes and contentes expressid yn everie suche Commyssion, within the lymytts therof, to their connynge, witts, and uttermost of their power."

The oath which the Commissioners were required to take may be found at p. 1. of the Second Volume, and the Commission at p. 289 of the same Volume. From neither of these documents can more be collected than from the preceding extracts from the Act of Parliament, except that the date of the Commissions was on the 30th day of January, in the Twenty-sixth of the King, A. D. 1535, and that the Returns were to be made into the Exchequer by the Octaves of the Holy Trinity. In various portions of the Record we find the names of those who were put in the Commissions, all of whom appear to have been principal persons in their respective district, below the degree of a Baron.

With the Commissions were delivered copies of certain "Instructions" signed by the King. These are printed immediately following this Introduction; and we may collect from them information concerning the manner in which the Commissioners were to proceed.

First of all they were to send for any Scribes or Officers of the Bishops or Archdeacons who might be supposed capable of giving them information, and learn from them what Deaneries Rural there were within the limits of the district over which their inquiry was to extend, and to what Diocese or other jurisdiction the said several Deaneries belonged; and then what Deaneries, Monasteries, Benefices, or other Promotions spiritual there were within the limits of their Commission. With this information before them, they were next to divide themselves into parties of three, or some number above three, and each party was to take to itself a certain number of the Deaneries Rural, or other exempt places, at their discretion, and proceed to examine into the value of all spiritual promotions contained therein, according to the lists which had been prepared. And for the better execution of their duty they are directed to examine all Incumbents, their Receivers and Auditors, on oath, and to search all Register books of Accompt, Easter-books, and other writings which may be thought necessary by them, and to use all other ways and means to come at the truth. But in the examination into the value of every Bishoprick, the Bishop is himself to form one of the Commissioners. When they have obtained all the information that is to be had, they are to enter it in a book of accompt, made after the Auditors' fashion. The several parties are then to assemble and compare their several books, which are to be certified together into the King's Exchequer, within the time limited in the Commission, together with the Commission itself and the Instructions.

Such was the care taken for the due execution of the duty of which this Record is the result.

III.—The Classes of Dignities, Benefices, and Ecclesiastical Foundations within the scope of the Survey.

The terms of the Act are as comprehensive as possible. From the Archbishop and the wealthiest Abbot down to the meanest Vicarage or the most poorly endowed Chantry, all were brought within the scope of the Act. But it may be proper to set the various Promotions Spiritual before the Reader in the order in which they are to be found in the Instructions given to the Commissioners:

I. The See of every Archbishop or Bishop.

II. The Church or Monastery which was the Seat of any such Archbishop or Bishop; and therein the endowments on any Dean or Prior, Treasurer, Residencer, Chanter, Sexton, Almoner, Hospitaller, Bowser, or any other person who has any dignity, prebend, vicarship, petticanonship, or other office, chantry, cure, or promotion spiritual in succession.

III. Archdeaconries, and Deaneries Rural.

IV. Colleges, and Churches Collegiate, with the endowments on the Deans, Sub-Deans, Masters, Provosts, Prebendaries, Fellows, Brethren, and Chantry Priests, and every person that has any dignity, prebend, petticanonship, or other office, chantry, cure, office, or other promotion spiritual going by succession.

V. Hospitals, and Places Conventual of any Secular Priests or Lay Brethren, with the endowments on the Master, Provost, or other Chief Governor, and on every other person who hath any dignity, fellowship, brothership, sistership, office, chantry, cure, advantage, or other promotion spiritual going by succession.

VI. Abbies, Monasteries, Priories, or Houses Religious and Conventual, including Charter Houses (which are expressly named as claiming, it is said, some right of exemption), with the endowments on the Abbot or Abbess, Prior or Prioress, or other Chief Governor, and also on the Sub-Prior, Sub-Prioress, Sexton, Selerer, Almoner, Bowser, Hospitaller, Monk-bailiff, Canon-bailiff, and every other spiritual person connected with them.

VII. Parsonages, Vicarages, Chantries, and Free Chapels: of which the former were benefices not impropriate; the second, churches where was a Vicar having an ordained income. Chantries were private foundations for the commemoration of the dead; and by Free Chapels appear to have been understood those chapels which had been founded within parishes by the devotion of parishioners living usually remote from their parish church, and which had no endowment but what was of the gift of the founders or other benefactors.

All these were to be set down in the books in the following order: First, the See of the Bishop or Archbishop; next the Endowments on the various Offices in the Cathedral Church; and then the Archdeaconries, and Deaneries Rural, with their claims; after this each Rural Deanery in order, with, first, the Monasteries or Colleges within it, and then the various Parsonages, Vicarages, Chantries, and Free Chapels.

IV.—The Mode in which the Property is set forth.

We find in the Act of Parliament, that the Commissioners were required to make a Return of all the fixed Property belonging to any Benefice or Dignity, as manors, lands, tenements, rents; of all the Tithe Property; and of all the Customary Oblations, which were, as we find, estimated communibus annis: of these the gross amount was to be returned. From this amount, however, they were allowed to make certain deductions before the value was ascertained, which was to be taken as the actual value of the Benefice or Dignity on which the First Fruits and Tenths were to be levied. These deductions consisted of (1.) the Rents resolute to the Chief Lords, and all other annual and perpetual rents and charges: (2.) the Alms which were due to the Poor, according to any foundation or ordinance: (3.) Fees to Stewards, Receivers, Bailiffs, and Auditors: and (4.) Synodals and Procurations, with which most Abbies and Benefices were charged. But the Instructions go in this point beyond the Act; and it being foreseen that claims might be set up for remuneration for Spiritual Services, the Commissioners are strictly enjoined to make no allowance for these; and, with a less appearance of equity, to suffer no estimate of Repairs of Edifices to be taken into account when settling the clear annual income to be derived from them.

The Returns are in general made conformably to these Instructions. In the account of the possessions of the Monasteries, for instance, we have first the annual value of the precincts; next of the lands which were situated in the county in which the house stood; the lands in other counties; and last the impropriate rectories: and on the other hand, the rents resolute, the alms, the fees, and the synodals. So in the accounts of the Benefices, we have in the unimpropriate parishes an account of the value of the manse, glebe, and tythe (the value of each particular tythe being often set forth), with the oblations: and in the impropriate, the sources of the Vicar's income; while the other portions of the profits are accounted for by the Religious Houses to which the benefice was appropriated. From both these is the allowed reduction, which in the case of the Benefices is seldom more than the Synodals to the Archbishop and the Procurations to the Archdeacon. The Chantries and the Free Chapels have their less complex endowments plainly set forth.

The execution of a work of this magnitude required, we may suppose, in some instances, more time than the terms of the Commission allowed. Yet in general it appears to have been executed between January and June in 1535. The returns however for the County of Lincoln are dated on the 3d of September in that year, and for the County of Bucks on the 26th of September.

There is not, I believe, any reason to suppose that the Commissioners did not execute their work faithfully. In one instance we have a kind of double return. It will be found in Vol. i. pp. 89-98, and relates to the Diocese of Canterbury, of which the Archbishop (Cranmer) was required to make a return by the King's writ, dated 20th July, in the Twenty-eighth of the King. There are also Returns made of the Endowments on Officers in the Church of Wells in the time of Edward VI. and of Elizabeth, to remedy, as it seems, the imperfections of the Valor. See it in Vol. i. p. 129. There is also a double Return of the Abbey of Burton, Vol. iii. p. 147. But I have not met with any complaints of remissness or of oppression; and the great complaint in after times, when the system of which this book is the basis was in full operation, was that the oblations were rated somewhat too highly: the oblations being in some measure voluntary payments, and being greatly reduced in amount after the Reformation. See what Fuller says on this subject in his Church History of Britain, Cent. xvi. B. v. p. 228.

V.—The Uses now to be made of this Record.

And here undoubtedly the first and principal use to be made of it is still that for which purpose the Survey was undertaken,—the determining the sums payable as the First Fruits and Tenths of the Benefices and Dignities which are still chargeable with the payment of them.

These payments are, however, no longer made to the Crown. Queen Anne, as an act of Royal Bounty to the Church, in the second year of her reign, gave up this source of revenue; not, indeed, giving it back to the hands which had to render it, but to Trustees, who were empowered to administer it for the benefit of the poorer Clergy. This gift of the Queen was confirmed by Act of Parliament 2 & 3 Anne, cap. 11.

It is now therefore no longer to be considered as a Record between the King and the Church, but as between one portion of the Church and another, as regulating the claims of the Trustees of the Royal Bounty of Queen Anne on the parties who remain chargeable with the render.

Digitized by Google

But long before the time of this gift the Record had lost something of its importance in this view of it, in consequence of various Acts of Parliament:

And 1. Those by which the Monasteries were dissolved. When the whole revenues were seized by the Crown, there was no longer any room for the claim of fractional portions of them.

2. The Act of the first of Edward VI., which suppressed all the Chantries and some of the Free Chapels, and gave the whole of the revenue by which they were supported to the King.

3. Queen Elizabeth, in the first year of her reign, by the Act by which she repealed a statute of the reign of her predecessor introducing some modifications into the law of First Fruits and Tenths, discharged for ever from the payment of First Fruits all Parsonages which were under the value of 10 marks, and all Vicarages under the value of £10; and of both, the Universities, the Colleges of Eton and Winchester, all Hospitals founded for the relief of the poor, and all Schools for the instruction of the young.

And 4. Soon after the gift which Queen Anne had made, there was an Act of Parliament in the sixth of her reign, discharging from the payment of both First Fruits and Tenths all Livings which were then under the annual value of £50.

So that the utility of the Record in respect of that which was the primary object for which it was formed is greatly diminished: those portions of it being in this point of view only of use which relate to the wealthier Rectories and Vicarages, and to such Dignities and high Promotions spiritual, as survived in the new modelling of the Church at the time of the Reformation.

Next to this in point of dignity and importance is, that this Record is taken as exhibiting the value of any piece of Church-preferment, in the interpretation of rights or restrictions under any subsequent statute in which the value is a criterion. In this relation it is that we find the Record often cited under the name of THE KING'S BOOKS.

And next to this, that it shows what Churches were of antient foundation, enjoying tythe as of common right, thereby operating to maintain in its purity the parochial distribution of the country, and to maintain the rights of the parish churches against the chapels, sometimes, but as it seems improperly, called parochial. While amongst chapels it shows which existed before the Reformation, for it is held that none escaped which had before the Reformation any fixed endowment: whence it follows that any Chapel not in this book is either of recent foundation, or was left by its founders without any endowment on the priest who was to officiate in it.

But for practical purposes it is supposed that there is more frequent resort to this Record for another purpose. In questions respecting the profits of Benefices, it is often the best resort which the parties have; and in all cases where the Ordination of a Vicarage is not to be found in the Depository which ought to have it in custody, the want of it is best supplied by the matter of this Record: and being matter of Record it may be pleaded in evidence in all questions such as these.

Even those portions of the Valor which by the suppression of the Monasteries and Chantries have in a great measure lost their political importance, are often found valuable in questions of right, showing as they do the estates of the Monasteries, or the rights of tythe enjoyed by the Monasteries; the former of which were often entitled to certain exemptions, and the other it being not less important to ascertain with precision, though they may be now secularized.

So that in its bearing on claims litigated or subject to be litigated, this Record may justly be called inestimable.

But while the suppression of the Monasteries, Hospitals, Colleges, and Chantries, the foundations of our remote and pious ancestors, and the discharge of so many benefices from the burthen imposed on them, do in some measure lower the importance of the Valor as a document to be used in the public affairs of the country, and the private relations between man and man, yet do not these things at all diminish its value when it is looked at under that other aspect under which all Records admit of being placed,—as an Historical Document, by means of which much may be collected concerning the state of the country at the time when it was prepared, and many facts be recovered in the transactions of preceding centuries. Its value in this point of view will be at once apparent when it is recollected that we have here presented before us, in one grand conspectus, the whole Ecclesiastical Establishment of England and Wales, as it had been built up in successive centuries, and when it was carried to its greatest height. As in Domesday Book we are presented with a view of the feudal distributions of England as they were settled at the Conquest, so here we have the ecclesiastical distributions as they existed, not only at the time when this survey was made, but as they had existed, scarcely altered, from the close of the reign of King Henry I.: and as in Domesday Book we are presented with the value of the tenures, and of particular species of property attached to them, so here we have the valuation of the various dignities and benefices, and of the particular species of property with which they were endowed. So that we at once see, not only the antient extent and amount of that provision which was made by the piety of the English nation for the spiritual edification of the people by the erection of Churches and Chapels for the decent performance of the simple and touching ordinances of the Christian Religion, but how large a proportion had been saved from private appropriation of the produce of the soil, and how much had subsequently been given, to form a public fund, accessible to all, out of which might be supported an order of cultivated and more enlightened men dispersed through society, and by means of which blessings incalculable might be spread amongst the whole community. If there were spots or extravagancies, yet on the whole it is a pleasing as well as a splendid spectacle, especially if we look with minute observation into any portion of the Record, and compare it with a map which shows the distribution of population in those times over the island, and then observe how Religion had pursued man even to his remotest abodes, and was present among the most rugged dwellers in the hills and wildernesses of the land, softening and humanizing their hearts.

All this is interesting to the Philosopher as well as to the Historian; while it is of essential moment to him who undertakes to give a topographical description of any portion of the country: but the Record does not stop here. It presents us with a view of those more gorgeous establishments where the service of the Most High was conducted in the magnificent structures which still exist amongst us, with a great array of priests, and all the pomp of which acts of devotion admit; and of the Abbies and other Monasteries, now but ruined edifices, where resided the sons and daughters of an austerer piety, and where the services were scarcely ever suspended.

But when it sets forth the sources from whence the revenue was derived by which these foundations were maintained, and the outgoings from the rents and profits, charges for obits and alms, settled often by the original founder, we are presented with innumerable facts, important in monastic history, and in the history of the persons who were distinguished in the reigns of our early Sovereigns. While in the full enumeration which is given of the various persons who held offices in the Monasteries, as Auditors, Stewards, and Receivers, we have facts which the Biographer may turn to excellent account in the lives of many persons who flourished in the reigns of the Tudors; and in the accounts of Benefices and Dignities an almost complete catalogue of the Clergy of that time, with the several preferments enjoyed by them, — a time of such peculiar importance in the Ecclesiastical History of the country.

And, lastly, the notices of the Chantries in this Record serve as the best guide we have to the purpose and the æra of those Chapels which we find attached to so many of the parish Churches of England, injuring their symmetry, and obscuring the original design, but often presenting features of great architectural beauty, and of which, by aid of this Record, the age may not unfrequently be determined.

VI.—The State, Conservation, and Publication of the Record.

It will be seen, by reference to the King's Instructions, that the Commissioners were to make their Returns according to the fashion of Auditors' Books. In the manner in which the accompts are drawn up, they have done so, but in the form in which they have rendered the accompts there is great diversity. Some of the Commissioners made their returns on rolls, some in books; some on paper, others on parchment.

A Record thus irregular in its form and various in its material is more exposed to injury and loss than when it consists of a series of rolls or volumes of the same form and material. And paper, especially when in rolls, is a far less suitable material for the purpose than parchment, which is often seen rendering up its trust with perfect fidelity after the lapse of ten or twelve centuries, and promising to render it with equal fidelity to the men of centuries yet distant. The paper rolls of this Record have sustained some injury; but they are now protected from further injury by having been bound in volumes under the especial superintendence of Mr. Caley. What rolls still remain in their original form are preserved in the best manner possible, by being placed in cases of tin.

And now, an unfortunate confession is to be made:—Some portions of the Record are lost. Among these is the whole Diocese of Ely; a great part of the Diocese of London; the Counties of Berks, Rutland, and Northumberland; much of the Returns for the Diocese of York, including the whole Deaneries of Rydal and Craven. That Returns for these districts did once exist is made manifest by the book preserved in the same office, entitled LIBER VALORUM. In this book are preserved the names of the dignities and benefices, with the value of each, but without the particulars. It was made long ago, for the use of the office, when the Record was entire. Where the Record itself is wanting, this Book has been used in the present publication.

It is however but an imperfect remedy to a loss which is greatly to be deplored, as it deprives the country of some of the most valuable information that has ever been made matter of Record, and renders so far nugatory the expence and labour of this great Commission. What account may now be given of the time or the circumstances of the disappearance of these documents from the care of those who were the sworn guardians of them, I have no information before me on which to depend;—they are not known to have existed within the memory of any person now connected with the Office:—but I cannot forbear to add that it must give satisfaction to all persons who are sensible to the importance of handing down to posterity the matter contained in the more prominent of the National Records, that over what remains, — and it is by far the larger portion of this great work, — a protection is now extended, more secure, more lasting, than the vigilance of the most trustworthy keepers, and the protection of the safest depositories.

GENERAL INTRODUCTION.

While the Press multiplies and diffuses, it also preserves: and should the other portions of this Record follow those which are gone, it is to be feared, irrecoverably, this printed Work will still remain, and will show the sound policy on which the Government has acted in giving the matter of such an important document to the Press.

An Appendix is annexed to each Volume, consisting of Returns made in 1810, by the Prelates, of places in their respective Dioceses where there exists any Peculiar Jurisdiction: and it must be added that the integrity of the original Record has been so far violated in this publication as to introduce the new diocesal division of the country which was made in the Thirty-fourth of Henry VIII., eight years after the date of this Survey.
